much lately but with all of the studying and preparation for the academy there isn't a whole lot of free time for getting on the computer to BS.

So far I am doing very well. I am loving the experience and I am loving LA. The Academy here works a little different than the academy for NYPD. You guys had tremendous classes of 1000 guys/girls go in at one time... January or July... We have smaller classes but there is a new freshman class just about every month. My class has just over 70 recruit officers.

Well anyway, all of you guys that emailed me or PM'd me and mentioned Esprit d'Corps, I had no idea what you ment till my class actually began. YOU WERE 100% CORRECT!!

Getting through this academy is a tremendous challenge both academically and physically... but at the same time it I am having a great time. I have met some awesome people in my classmates and my instructors. I have excellent instrustors, some of them with 30+ years on the job. Their real life experience in the classroom setting is more valuable than I can put into words.

Anyway folks... I just wanted to say Hello!! And let you know that I am doing great.

And DoorKicker has been a better friend than you can imagine. His advice and help out here has been priceless, with out doorkicker out here this transition would have been far more difficult. I owe him more than I can put into words.

Anyone thinking about coming out here... Let me just say IT'S AWESOME!!! The weather can't be beat. The people are awesome. Don't think twice, just do it!

Give me what I want and I will go away.

Old advice worth repeating

You sound like a good kid, and at the risk of repeating something you've heard already.....Don't post anything personal about yourself, OR your experiences that can be traced to you. This message board can serve you well but if you post something that can expose you, you will have a problem. Don't be paranoid but be careful.

This advice goes to my fellow college educated NYPD bretheren who think this is a confessional.

I will absolve you..... but will they?

Re: EA at PT

News from the front lines

That's great news and all of us are really happy for you.

Keep it up and try to post whenever possible.

Anything really unusual about the training? Any weird procedures?

Yeah, and he only has 15 yrs on. When I was a youngster watching that show I thought he had at least 25 on. 😊
